INTEREST OF COUNTY CENTERS IN FORTHCOMING ELECTIONS

Five Contests In Offices Of County Create Interest In Primary No Township Fight Here

With the primary election just a month off, interest is beginning to loom in the five contests for county offices in this county. These contests are for county clerk, county treasurer, sheriff, coroner and public administrator, and for surveyor. The remaining officials in the court house will go back into office in January without any opposition. The incumbents, who are unopposed are County Superintendent of Schools Pansy Jewett Abbott, District Attory Franklin Swart, Tax Collector Ambrose McSweeney, Assessor Dan P. Flynn, Recorder T. C. Rice and Auditor Ed Stack. The two township officers in this district, Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe and Constable F. B. Grill, are also unopposed.

County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese has for her opponent Elmore B. Hinman, Redwood City merchant and councilman. Mrs. Kneese is completing her third term as county clerk. She was appointed in 1919 to succeed her late husband, Jos. H. Nash, and since that time has been re-elected each succeeding term by the highest complimentary vote of any of the candidates. Mrs. Kneese has an enviable record of service, her office being considered one of the most efficiently conducted of all the county clerks' offices in the state. Mrs. Kneese's own sweet and pleasing personality, added to her efficiency and the efficiency of a courteous and obliging corps of deputies, has made thousands of friends for the office and these are now supporting the incumbent for re-election. Among the supporters for Mrs. Kneese is Judge Geo. H. Buck, honored superior judge of San Mateo county for the past 40 years. Mrs. Kneese, among her numerous other duties, is clerk of the superior court. The re-election of Mrs. Kneese by an overwhelming vote is being freely predicted.

Mrs. Cooper Strong

Mrs. Grace L. Cooper is conducting a quiet but effective campaign for re-election as county treasurer. She has held this office for the past four years, but has had seven years experience in the position, having served three years prior to her election as deputy under the late beloved P. P. Chamberlain, custodian of the funds of San Mateo county for many years. Mr. Chamberlain at the end of his term in 1926 declined to run again for office on account of ill health and endorsed Mrs. Cooper's candidacy for the position. Three other candidates, all popular and politically strong in the county, conducted active campaigns for the office, and Mrs. Cooper led the field at the August primary and then won out by a large vote in November.

It is conceded that Mrs. Cooper has made a good treasurer and not a single complaint or criticism has been directed at the office during her entire administration. Her obliging ways and courteous treatment of those who have business at the office have made her innumerable friends, and her re-election to this important position seems certain. Opposing Mrs. Cooper is Harry Jenkins, former banker and at present city councilman of Burlingame.

Sheriff's Fight

A three-cornered fight is being conducted for the office of sheriff. James J. McGrath, the incumbent, is being oposed by Charles Lorton of San Mateo, a deputy under former Sheriff Michael Sheehan, and Thomas Furman, former chief of police of Menlo Park.

Sheriff "Jim," as he is popularly known to thousands of admirers, was appointed to this important business three years ago following the sudden passing of Sheriff Tom McGovern. Taking up the duties at that time, the incumbent has "made good" in every way and it is generally conceded that he has made one of the best sheriffs San Mateo county has ever had. Sheriff "Jim" has a host of strong admirers, who are assisting him in his campaign for election.

Two in Coroner's Fight

There are two in the race for county coroner and public administrator. Dr. J. C. McGovern of South San Francisco, who has held the office for the past three years, since his appointment to succeed the late Dr. W. A. Brooke of Halfmoon Bay, is opposed by William Crosby, undertaker of Burlingame. Both men, with the aid of their friends, are conducting spirited campaigns. Dr. McGovern, who is perhaps, one of the best-known men of San Mateo county, he being a member of one of the early pioneer families to settle on the coastside, has the support of practically all the undertakers in the county, and they are aiding him in his campaign. He is a brother of the late Sheriff Tom McGovern. Mr. Crosby has been in the undertaking business in Burlingame for a number of years and has quite a strong following, particularly in that section of the county.

County Surveyor

Another three-cornered contest occurs for the office of county surveyor. Geo. A. Kneese, the incumbent is being oposed at the primaries by Willis G. Frost, well-known civil engineer of Redwood City and James S. James, civil engineer of Burlingame. Mr. Kneese, who is conducting his second term, is making his appeal to the voters on his eight years of service as county surveyor. He has been most efficient in the conduct of the affairs of the office, putting it on a sound business basis and keeping pace with the rapid growth and development of the county. He has proven himself a splendid executive and has engaged only the finest and most expert engineers to carry on the work. Mr. Kneese is a registered civil engineer and licensed land engineer of the state of California.

Man Injured As Car Hits Fence

Thomas Jefferson Taken To Community Hospital After Crash

Thomas Jefferson of this city was seriously injured early yesterday morning, when a car which he was driving, left the road and ploughed through a fence on the old county road a short distance west of Cordeleras creek. Jefferson was found in an unconscious condition in the car by Mr. McNally of 314 Main street and was taken to his home at 1151 Jefferson street.

Dr. Herbert Clatenburg was summoned to give Jefferson first aid treatment. Dr. Clattenburg found that his head was badly cut where it had been thrown through the windshield of the car as it struck the fence. He apparently was suffering from several broken ribs and possible internal injuries. He was later taken to the community hospital, where he is reported to be in a serious condition.

Exchange Club Adjourns Meet To Play Golf

The regular weekly meeting of the Redwood City Exchange Club was a short one this week owing to the desire of the members to play golf. After the regular club dinner the club adjourned to the miniature golf course, where the members engaged in swinging the clubs.

ITALY QUAKE KILLS THOUSANDS IN RUINS

Special Correspondent Writes of Horrors As Buildings Burn Following Earthquake in Several Italian Provinces; Chaos Prevails

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Copywright 1030 by United Press

BENEVENTO, Italy, July 23 -- (UP)—A unofficial estimate tonight based on various reports, said that 3,000 persons were believed to have ben buried alive and killed in Benevnto Province in the earthquake.

I personally have gone over the entire town of Villanova-Albanese.

The town was completely crushed.

Two thousand of the 3,000 population appeared to have been buried in the ruins of their homes as they slept, and it was feared that most of them were killed.

Four new shocks were recorded here during the day, following the first quake felt in Naples at 1:06 a. m., and there were other minor tremors.

The earthquake area stretched across south central Italy — the "ankle of the boot."

The town of Melfi in Potenza Province reported 120 dead and 400 injured.

The newspaper Il Roma in Naples reported the dead at Villanova in Ellino Province would exceed 100.

The newspaper Il Roma asserted that reports of 300 dead at Montecalvo in Avellino Province had been confirmed.

The United Press correspondent was the first to reach Naples after the earthquake. Refugees arriving from Melfi and other stricken districts told the correspondent tragic stories of events during the quake.

Many did not seem to know what they were doing. They seemed still under the impressions of their their terrible night, when they rushed from their homes thinking that the end of the world had come.

Several women died of fright without being otherwise injured. One woman was found dead with a child in her arms, seeking to protect it. Both were crushed by falling masonry.

In Naples, where buildings were toppled down and bridges crashed, people ran into the streets leaving their living quarters visible where the quake had torn residences apart.

Beds hung suspended, chairs lay about in disorder, bed-clothing was spread about rooms and down the sides of torn structures.

The police ordered some buildings evacuated, fearing they might collapse.

The death toll in Naples was estimated at 20, with many injured, but the shocks were greatest in the outlying provinces, in Avellino, and Benevento as well as in Potenza. The silght casualty list in Naples was considered miraculous.

Several six story apartment houses I saw were split as with a sharp huge axe, exposing living quarters. The disaster here was worst along the Via Casanova.

The town of Venosa in Potenza was reported almost entirely razed.

Telephonic and telegraph communications were badly crippled. Acurate details of casualities were slow in reaching the authoritites.

The historic castle of Frederick, one of the glories of Melfi, was reported tottering.

The railroad station at Melfi endangered crowds gathering in it. They were shepherded by employes away from the shed, which it was feared would collopse.

Peasants told the correspondent many children were injured by falling masonry at the orphanage at Rionero.

BRITISH RECONSIDER ENTRY IN AERO RACE

LONDON, July 23, (UP)—Information that Italy plans to compete in the 1931 Schneider trophy race is likely to bring a determined effort by British aviation interests to get the British Government to reconsider its decision not to participate in the race, it was believed today.

As matters stand, the British Government is prepared to loan to a private firm the machines which were rebuilt for or competed in the 1929 Schnieder trophy race which Great Britain won the past two years. But the loan is hedged by the condition that the machines must be insured for £20,000 each (approximately $97,000). In view of the risks involved it is likely that the cost of insurance would be prohibitive to any private concern or group of sportsmen.

The Government's present position is that it will not permit the machines to be flown by Royal Air Force Pilots. At least six months intensive training would be necessary to train a team of civilian pilots to handle these sensitive and tremendously fast racers and this cost also would be large.

Unless the government sees its way clear to revise its present decision there is every likelihood that the trophy will go by default to Italy or some other competing country, probably France.

As Great Britain needs but one more victory to make the trophy permanently her's the pressure brought to bear on the government to reconsider the position is expected to be great.

Man Held in Southern City For Theft of Car Here on 14th of July

Sergeant Stanley Wood of the Redwood City police department, left nast night by airplane for Los Angeles to bring back Jack Otto, 22, arrested in the southern city Wednesday night for stealing the Stutz automobile of Vincent Maranta, local business man, on July 14. The car was recovered by the Los Angeles police, and according to word received here by Chief C. L. Collins, was not damaged.

Otto, the police records show, stole a La Salle coupe in Seattle, Wash., on July 9, and drove the car to Redwood City, where he abandoned it, and then stole the Maranta machine, which he found parked on Hamilton street, near Broadway. The Seattle car was owned by O. Denny.

TWO MORE DAYS TO REGISTER

But two more days remain in which registrations will be accepted for the August primary elections. Those who have not registered and do not do so either today or tomorrow will forfeit the oportunity of casting a ballot at the election next month.

The election this year will be an important one as many contests exist in the county offices as well as in the state ones, and those who either through neglect or indifference fail to register may regret that failure as the time for election approaches.

In order to make registration as easy and convenient as possible County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese is keeping her office open unti 9 o'clock in the evening up to and including Saturding, July 26th.

Services Held For Mrs. Ross

Pioneer Woman of San Mateo Laid to Rest at Private Service Wednesday

Funeral services were held in San Mateo Wednesday for Mrs. Mary Ross, one of San Mateo county's best known pioneer residents. The services were private and were held at the Ross home on Ninth and Laurel avenues, in San Mateo, by Dr. William A. Brewer, rector emeritus of the Burlingame Episcopal church.

Mrs. Ross was born in San Mateo and her life's endeavors had been spent within the confines of this county. She was the descendent of an old Boston family dating back to pre-Revolutionary days, being a direct descendent of Matthew Thornton, one of the signers of the constitution. Before her marriage she was Miss Mary Donald, daughter of John Donald, a pioneer settler of this county, who came from his Massachusetts home across the Isthmus of Panama in 1849.

Mrs. Ross was married in 1877 to the late George C. Ross, prominent attorney of this county. The couple had three sons, two sons followed in their father's profession, and Hall and Lee Ross now form the law firm of Ross & Ross, one of the best known legal offices of the state. The other son, Dr. Donald Ross is now a prominent dentist of San Jose.

Following the services at the home a private interment service was held at Cypress Lawn. The great love and respect in which Mrs. Ross was held throughout the county was indicated by the numerous floral offerings which were sent to the home. She was a woman devoted to her community and ernest in her work for charity and for the Episcopal church, of which she was a member. Her loss is sadly felt throughout the county.

MRS. RODERICK HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Wife of Slain La Honda Rancher Taken Into Custody Wednesday on Warrant Requested by District Attorney

The La Honda murder case, which was brought to the fore during the latter part of last month by the finding of the body of Frank Roderick, La Honda rancher, buried in an abandoned well on his ranch with a bullet hole through his head, was again brought to public notice Wednesday with the arrest of Mrs. Minnie Roderick, wife of the murdered man.

Mrs. Roderick was taken into custody shortly after noon Wednesday by Sheriff McGrath and Jail Matron Dolly Granger. She was booked at the county jail on a charge of murder.

The finding of the body of the La Honda man followed a long search by Constable Grill and Sheriff McGrath for evidence in a cattle rustling ring which was reported to be working around La Honda. Roderick was believed to have had a part in the cattle stealing, and his disappearance about May 15 was considered important. At that time it was believed that he had left the county.

A story was told by Mrs. Roderick of his having run away with another woman. She had come to the district attorney and asked for a warrant for his arest on a charge of battery, charging that he had beaten her.

When Roderick's body was found, the woman charged that he had been shot by Will Woodring, a hired hand on the Roderick ranch, and that Woodring with the aid of Ernest Hildebrandt, a neighbor, had buried him in the well. This story she later changed, and admitted that it was she, and not Hildebrandt, who had helped put her husband's body in the well. She claimed that Woodring had threatened to kill her if she told any one of the matter.

On July 8 an inquest was held at the parlors of Laying & Tinney into the death of Roderick. After hearing the testamony at his inquest, the jury brought in a verdict that Roderick was killed by a gun shot wound through the head by a party or parties unknown and recommended that Mrs. Roderick be taken into custody and held until by fair trial she could prove her innocence of any part of the crime.

When the verdict of the coroner's jury was heard by District Attorney Swart, he stated that he would not ask the arrest of Mrs. Roderick on the evidence which he then had, and that he would not have her taken into custody until he had sufficient evidence to show her part in the murder.

Her arrest Wednesday upon a charge of murder upon a warrant sworn out by Deputy Sheriff Edward Farrell at the request of District Attorney Swart would indicate that additional evidence has been found. What this additional evidence is, however, has not been disclosed.

The same coroner's jury which requested the arrest of Mrs. Roderick also recommended that Ernest Hildebrandt be held at the jail as a material witness. Deputies at the jail stated that no warrant for his arrest has been issued.

Mrs. Roderick is being represented by J. J. Bullock. At the inquest he refused to allow her to testify Woodring, who is still in jail awaiting trial, is being represented by Attorney Gilbert Ferrell.

Resources of Individual Basis of Prosperity

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

"It would seem to me that the best advice anyone could give to the American people today would be to tell them to spend money freely. It is the free spending of money by the public that brings prosperity."

This is a portion of a letter recently received by this writer. No doubt the opinion here expressed is shared by many.

It is obvious, of course, that when people generally are not spending money, less money is in circulation. It is also just as true that over-spending by the people brings about conditions of inflation and economic unsoundness. Nothing is ever gained economically by people buying things they do not need. Nothing is ever gained economically by people refraining from buying what they should have and can afford.

It should be quite apparant that the widespread spending of money for things people do not need or cannot afford represents economic waste. Such conditions, therefore, cannot rightly be called the basis of prosperity. Manifestly the prosperity of a nation must rest on the purchasing power of the people. When people have resources back of them they are individually prosperous and are able to buy what they need but if they are continually spending money for things they do not need and cannot afford — indulging in wasteful habits — they can not permanently prosper.

At the same time we must not overlook the fact that the standard of living of the American People is steadily improving. The bare necessities of life are not enough. We have rightful conveniences, our comforts, our small luxuries. In this way we are developing new industries and furnishing employment for more people and more capital. All of this is within the meaning of true American progress and true American thrift. For America never goes backwards.

One of the chief values of thrift is that it develops judgment in the administrataion of one's personal affairs. And this judgment must be used by us at the present time in deciding the proper balance to be maintained between spending and saving. We should not cultivate habits of miserliness, neither should we spend beyond our means. We must not be unmindful of the fact that we are dealing with problems of the future as well as the present. No man has a right to pauperize himself today and joepardize his future economic independence under any circumstances or for any reason whatever.

Educator Stresses Civic Training Need

"We are not making such remarkable progress in solving our international relations, in achieving human brotherhood, in eliminating vice, crime and immorality, in understanding man's appetite and habits, and in improving his method of thinking that we can feel satisfied with the old methods," stated United States Commissioner of Education William John Cooper, in an address to the National Education Association at Columbus, Ohio, on July 3. The Commissioner continued in part:

"Education for the proper discharge of civic duties is one of the problems facing the pioneers of the 1930 decade. Some of the qualities of the older pioneer are still assets, but new tools are also needed to perform new tasks. A strong body, an indomitable will, courage in physical peril, and a few single tools, sufficient to wrest a continent from uncontrolled vegetation, wild beasts and Indians—some of this equipment, though desirable, is not required for attacking the problems of 1930, but qualifications not requisite in 1830 are essential today.

"More than mere knowledge is required to insure the program. The principle of the electric magnet may remain a mere academic fact, or be utilized as a plaything or be made to develop an electric era in the history of the world. That there is a vast difference between knowing the right thing to do and doing it was pointed out many centuries ago by a Greek historian.

"Until we are ready not only to receive new truth in these fields from the Lunds and the Gleucks, but to apply it in our thinking and acting we cannot achieve the miracles that come from discoveries in the natural sciences. Just as the men of 1830 were opening up the wilderness, were clearing away the undergrowth of centuries and making new crops where only wild animals had gone, so the century which lies ahead of us should be marked by the opening up of man's mind, the sweeping away of ideas which have grown up more or less hit and miss through the centuries and of planting well-established fact where only unfounded prejudice has existed, and the careful nurture of the new crop until a new civilization blossoms."

Farmers Must Learn Big Business

Western wheat farmers who are the capitalists of the agricultural class, declare that American farmers as a whole must learn the principles of big busines if they wish to enjoy the benefits of the Federal Farm Board's principle.

Otherwise, Western growers say, in a series of interviews presented in the August number of The Country Home, they will violate all of the basic laws on which industry and manufacturing have been built.

If a manufacturing company finds it is over producing, say the Westerners, production can be cut down by an executive order. If such an order is issued to co-operative farmers, it will be merely a suggestion. Some may withdraw from the organization and outsiders may over produce. Then, they believe, prices will "come tumbling down like Niagara."

The Westerners argue that the cost of raising wheat, a few years ago, was $1 a bushel for some growers and $8.20 for the less efficient. The minimum has been cut since then. Therefore, they say, a co-operative movement would be merely an act of charity to the inefficient. Continuing their argument they express their belief in co-operation if the mass of farmers will learn to operate as big business concerns do. Too many, they say, will enter the co-operatives with the purpose of deriving cash benefits at once. And, if a bad year comes, they will withdraw. There is no power, they declare, to hold the organization together. Good will and a willingness to keep in line with the national trend will make the Farm Board plan a success, the farmers of broad acres believe.

Quality of Citizenship Basis of Development

"Citizenship is and always has been a tremendous asset in governmental affairs. The higher and finer the quality of citizenship in a country the better the government and the greater the progress and development and well-being of the nation," writes the Lieutenant Governor of Nebraska, Geo. A. Williams, in the United States Daily. He continues in part:

"In the last analysis, a community, a state, or a nation is just what its people make it. This is particularly true in a representative government like ours, where the people have the right to make and alter their government and choose their rulers and make their own laws.

"How important it is then that we give heed to the character of our citizenship and and quality in the truest sense of the term. . .

"America should guard well the foundation pillars upon which the Republic is builded I speak advisedly when I say America needs today a new baptism of citizenship. And another has said, 'not a mere sprinkling at the altar but a regular orthodox immersion in deep running water.'

"The foundation of our Government is the Constitution. All the power and strength and beauty of this, the greatest Republic of all ages, together with our rights and liberties, can only be preserved to us by a sacred regard for and a faithful observance of the principles of the Constitution and the laws founded thereon.

"There is too much disregard for law in our land. There is too much crime, and too many crimes going unpunished. No government is secure when its citizens exercise a choice as to the laws they shall or shall not observe.

"In our courts there are too many lawyers who ignore the fundamentals of our Constitution—justice and equity—and who prostitute their profession in their efforts to save criminals from deserved punishment."

Lingle

"Jake" Lingle, newspaper man turned grafter, is, among other things, an example of what frequently happens when a reporter is kept on one assignment too long.

It is not always evidence of weak moral fiber when a newspaper man comes to regard the interests of those with whom he comes in daily contact as a reporter, as paramount to the duty of the paper. Considerations of human friendship are powerful. The society reporter, for example, who cultivates people primarily because of their news value and winds up making intimate friendships with some of them, is not so much to be blamed as to be pitied when he or she feels the obligation to suppress a society scandal on the ground of friendship as more important than the obligation to report the news.

It is to the credit of the newspaper business that most of the members are honest, with a code of personal honor which, we feel safe in saying, is higher than that which commonly prevails in other lines of business. Almost every reporter has been exposed at one time or another to the temptation to take pay "on the side" for promoting or for suppressing the facts about some private interest. Comparatively few succumb.

The greatest danger which a reporter faces, however, is the danger that he may make too many and too close friends outside of the office. There is something Spartan in the admonition to newspaper men to make no friends, but it is just that habit of aloofness in all but professional contacts, the habit which prevails in America as it does not in most other countries, which gives the press of the United States its independent character which amazes European commentators.—American Press.

A Bumper Crop

WELL IM NOT GOING TO SLEEP IN A TENT TO-NIGHT AGAIN
I JUST HEARD HER SAY ALL THE ROOMS ARE OCCUPIED
IM SORRY FOLKS ALL THE ROOMS ARE OCCUPIED FOR THE NIGHT

It Seems to Me, by Haywood Broun

Variety the theatrical weekly, which casts a shrewd although materialistic eye upon the current scene, has found that Calvin Coolidge, once the first gentleman of the land, is now the third columnist. Its statement is somewhat more concise for the headline reads "Cal's No. 3 on Soft Jobs."

I tax Variety with materialism advisedly. The placing of Mr. Coolidge no better than third can hardly be based on appraisal of native worth, for otherwise how could I explain to myself the fact that I am running a poor sixth in the list?

Indeed, the weekly is frank in furnishing the estimates upon which the ranking is based. According to Variety, Mr. Coolidge receives from the syndicate which handles him $2 a word on a minimum of 150 and a maximum of 200 words. And this means, as I understand it, that over the 200 word mark Calvin Coolidge is strictly on his own, writing for exercise or posterity but not for pay.

BANG GOES THIRTY DOLLARS.

And if this information in regard to Mr. Coolidge's business is correct the ex-President has already belied his reputation for native New England shrewdness. Although he has been a columnist less than a month, Calvin Coolidge has twice overshot his stint and ventured into the domain where words and commas come quite free. Once he wrote 203 words and 212. And this, according to my estimate, amounts to $30 worth of gratis literature.

To be sure, the Northampton sage has leaped into the big money class since quitting public life. As columnist his income is nearly twice that which he received as President. This may serve to explain the new spirit of largesse. Not always was it thus. A taxi driver friend of mine tells me that shortly after the close of Mr. Coolidge's last administration he had the privilege of driving him from the Pennsylvania station to a nearby hotel. The clock registered thirty-five cents.

"And what did Mr. Coolidge give you?" I asked.

"Don't be silly," said the taxi driver. "He gave me thirty-five cents."

SETTING PACE FOR COOLIDGE.

In the columning field, according to Variety, Calvin Coolidge must yield precedence to Arthur Brisbane and Will Rogers. Mr. Brisbane is reported as receiving $250,000 a year for his views on passing events, while Will Rogers is set down at $3,000 weekly. And this, of course, takes no account of the cowboy's activities upon the air, the lecture platform ahd the screen.

Against these gigantic rewards a mere $2,400 or so a week for Calvin Coolidge may seem a little pitiful. But it must be remembered that the gentlemen from whom he takes pace have been in the business much longer. And Mr. Brisbane's column not only occupies more space but mentions a far greater number of themes. Anthropology, ancient history, talking pictures, and aesthetics in general jostle one another in the paragraphs of "Today," while "Calvin Coolidge Says" has been restricted pretty much to statecraft. Mr. Coolidge, as yet, has made no discovery as startling as Mr. Brisbane's famous announcement that "a gorilla could lick them both."

In newspaper work, as in other lines of activity, one must serve his apprenticeship. Mr. Coolidge should understand that. He himself was Governor and Vice President before he attained the White House. And now he must bide his time before he hopes to draw up on even terms with Will and Arthur.

ANKLING ALONG BEHIND.

But if I were Mr. Coolidge I should worry less about the columnists ahead of me than those immediately behind. A newcomer might well be satisfied at running for show against as many more experienced competitors. But the interesting problem is whether he can hold third place. Immediately behind him gallop two determined contenders. Upon his back Calvin Coolidge can feel the hot breath of Odd McIntyre and Walter Winchell. Only a few hundred dollars would serve to make a blanket sufficiently large to cover all three. And as a politician Mr. Coolidge is accustomed to strange bedfellows.

Calvin Coolidge's mistake, as I see it, is that he has temporarily foresworn the radio, which can be a large factor in building up the following of a newspaper columnist. Moreover, it has been generally reported that the timbre of his voice is excellent for the air. Nor is he unknown to the invisable audience.

Mr. Winchell in his hour makes regular use of assisting guest artists, and I see no reason why Calvin Coolidge should not do the same. I think I remember having once seen a photograph of the ex-President in an Indian headdress while he was vacationing in the Blackhills. Surely some friendly Sioux or Crow would gladly volunteer to supplement a talk by Mr. Coolidge with a war dance and a few whoops. And Bascom Slemp might aid by putting on his famous sleight-of-hand act called "Transforming a Politician into a Postmaster."

LOOK OUT FOR ODD.

With all seriousness I warn Calvin Coolidge not to take the competition of Walter Winchell and Odd McIntyre lightly. The test of a columnist is what he turns out after the fifth year. Up till now Mr. Coolidge seems to have been moving along smoothly enough. As yet his stint shows no sense of strain. But let him not forget that, after all, there are only ten commandments. What will he comment upon next?

Mr. Winchell has placed himself under no such handicap. There is, as far as the eye can reach, no limit whatsoever to blessed events.

Even a Brown lumbering along deep in the ruck is not wholly to be despised, for who can tell what shifts may come in the mad gallop down the long homestretch?

ORPHAN CHILDREN AIDED BY COUNTY DURING YEAR

$9,055 of County Money Spent on Orphan Relief; State Spends $1,792,000 for the Same Cause During Year Just Past; Costs Increasing

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, July 24 — (UP) —"Little Orphan Annie" is yearly becoming an increasingly expensive ward of the state of California.

Last year more than 16,000 orphan children received aid from the state and its counties, while the total sum expended for their care was approximately three million dollars.

California's share of the cost amounted to nearly $1,792,000, while the county expenditures aggregated $1,152,000.

Of the latter figure, San Mateo county paid out a total of $9,055 during the year, according to a statement just compiled by State Controller Ray L. Riley.

Aid is administered to orphan children through a division of children's aid in the Department of Social Welfare, under Miley M. Pope.

The state law allows $120 a year to be paid for support of each needy orphan, half-orphan or child of an incapacitated father. Counties may or may not match this sum, dollar for dollar. In most cases they do.

Foundlings, or children born of an unmarried mother may be allotted $15 a month until they are 2 years old. The state of California does not recognize the term, "illegitimate child." Parents may be illegitimate, the state holds, but every child is born with equal rights and social standing.

Orphan children are increasing in California at the rate of about 3 per cent every two years, it is estimated. The state apropriation for the present fiscal year, as contained in Governor Young's biennial budget, is $1,855,000, as compared to $1,792,000 for the preceding year.

Los Angeles leads the state in the amount spent on its orphans, with a total of $344,186.78. Alpine county has no orphan problem, hence spends money.

LONDON'S SOCIAL ELITE THRILLED BY MYSTERIES

LONDON, July 22, (UP)— Most of London's fashionable society these days is hunting the murderer. But —there isn't a killer or a corpse anywhere. It's all a game and used to "pep-up dinner parties.

Unlike most "murders," the guests are advised there will be one, when they receive their invitations. Some are stamped with a hoary hand clutching a dagger that is dripping blood, or at least red ink.

Others may portray a man shooting; another set a casket and many more eerie scenes.

Lady Chaytor chose Friday June 13th, for her party. The "murder" was committed in the dungeons of Witton Castle, Lady Chaytor's seat in Durham.

Every clew was followed, the murder was solved when the "Sherlock Holmes" legions finished their trek at a nearby inn where sausages and beer awaited them.

There are, according to reports, many ways to play the "murder" game. At one party recently slips were placed in a hat. They bore the names "murderer," "detective," "body" and many others, each guest playing a role.

In all instances, however, everyone must tell thetruth except the murderer, who is permitted to tell as many lies as he feels necessary to escape punishment.

25 YEARS AGO BLERIOT FLEW THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Pioneer of Aviation Surprised Both English and French By Flight from Callis to Dover

By STEWART BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, July 25, (UP)—Flushed with success and stammering in broken English, Louis Bleriot landed on the outskirts of Dover, England, 21 years ago today after accomplishing the first airplane flight across the Channel.

Today, hale and hearty at the age of 58, Bleriot is France's most important airplane manufacturer and the main force behind the development of France's commercial aviation. He has not piloted a plane in years and he seldom flies with anyone else. He makes planes, sells them and attends all aviation meetings—but never flies.

Madame Bleriot always has been opposed to her husband piloting a plane and he only succeeded in gaining her consent to fly the Channel after promising he would devote the rest of his life to constructing planes and not flying them.

M. Bleriot was 37 years old when he pitched his camp at Calais and prepared to fly the Channel in responce to an offer of 25,000 francs by the London Daily Mail for the first aviator to fly across the Channel between dawn and dusk. Six days before he succeeded, Hurbert Latham, also a Frenchman, fell into mid-Channel while attempting the first over-water flight. It is said Bleriot wept when he heard Latham had stolen a march on him and made the first attempt.

Bleriot's machine was the lightest made at this early epoch. It weighed approximately 500 pounds including the weight of the pilot and enough gasoline for a two-hour flight. The motor developed 22 horsepower.

The morning of his flight Bleriot was awakened by a friend shortly before 4 o'clock. He was blue and despondent and told his friend he did not wish to try the dangerous feat. The quaint machine was brought out of a farmer's shed and tuned up. Surrounded by nearly 2,000 persons, Bleriot climed aboard his craft at 4:35 A. M. bumped over the field into the air and over the Channel. Exactly 27 minutes and 21 seconds later, Bleriot landed rather roughly at Dover before an astonished crowd of Englishmen.

He made the crossing at an approximate altitude of 250 feet, the offer of the Daily Mail stipulated that any pilot would be disqualified whose machine touched the water even slightly during the crossing. He was followed by a torpedo destroyer to pick him up in case of accident, just as Latham was picked up six days earlier. During his flight, Bleriot passed three fishing boats whose astonished crews thought it was a new giant specie of bird.

The English officials, always correct, brought Bleriot a customs tariff form. He was asked if he had any goods to declare and if there was any sickness aboard his craft. Bleriot spoke little English, but he got along admirably with the British, who hailed him as a great hero.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk On Wit and Humor

S. M. School Superintendent Addresses Meeting Wednesday

An interesting talk on humor and humorists was given before the members of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday noon by Homer L. Martin, recently appointed supervisor of schools of the San Mateo High School and Junior College districts. The speaker showed the difference between wit and humor. Bernard Shaw, he stated was an example of wit, but Mark Twain was one of the best examples of a humorist. He also touched on the work of Will Rogers and other wel-known humorists.

The chairman of the meeting was Charles Nelson, manager of the local J. C., Penney store. James D. Hedge, secretary of the club, introduced as a guest of the club Howard B. Woodward, the sole surviving veteran of the Civil War in this city, who has just celebrated his 85th birthday.

John Forsythe, delegate from the San Mateo - Burlingame club to the Kiwanis International convention held at Atlantic City, brought greetings from the International to the local club. John Gill, delegate from the Redwood City club has not yet returned, as he left following the convention for a visit to England.

TWO BIG IRON CANNONS FOUND NEAR PEIPING

PEIPING, July 24, (UP)—Two massive iron cannons, believed to be 600 years old, have been unearthed in the protective walls of Peiping near the Shunchih gate by workmen demolishing the walls.

Experts declare that the cannons were used by the Ming emporer Chien Wen in his expedition against the northern tribesmen in the thirteenth century. The Association for the Preservation of Ancient Relics is taking over the cannons to be put in a museum.

A breach is being made in the city walls near the Shunchih gate to make a new gate into the city, permitting shortening of the road to Paomachang, the race-course near Peiping. Hundreds of thousands of bricks are being removed from the walls, and used in constructing new buildings.

Anderson Wins Court Ruling For Children

Long Standing Custody Case Settled in Decision Of Judge Buck

Judge Buck on Wednesday handed down a decision in the long contested matter of the custody of the children of Harold Anderson, of Hillsborough. The decision of Judge Buck was unfavorable to Mrs. Cynthia Beal, divorced wife of Anderson, and mother of the children, who has been trying to gain complete custody of the children.

At the time of their divorce the parents were given joint custody of their three minor children. Mrs. Anderson later married Carl H. Beale, an oil operator of Los Angeles, and then tried to secure sole custody of the children.

The case first gained prominence last Christmas when Beal and Anderson engaged in a fist fight, which was followed by a legal action, which was afterward dropped.

Germans Drown a Old Bridge Fails

Evacuation Celebration In Scene of Tragedy as Many Drown

COBLENZ, Germany, July 24 (UP)—Many were drowned when a a temporary pontoon bridge across the Coblenz harbor to a float splintered asunder, throwing more than 100 participants in the joyous Rhineland Liberations celebrations into the swift flowing Rhine river.

Thirty bodies had been recovered at 1:30 o'clock this morning it was officially announced, with others missing in the dark current. It was feared many more lost their lives.

The disaster occurred at the termination of the festivities and the illumination of Ehrenbritstein, dismantled old Fortress guarding the Reich's Rhineland border.

The crowd, returning home, jammed the wooden bridge .It collapsed.

Police, rushing to aid the howling, shrieking mass thrown into the water, rescued many.

The tragedy threw a pall over the gay, laughing holiday throng which all day had waved flags and sang hymns as President Paul Von Hindenburg visited Coblenz on his tour of the Liberated Rhineland.

"Can't Buy Landslide," Says Ruth

"It may be possible to buy certain elections in this country, but you cannot buy an Illinois landslide." Gentleman Tramp Died in Virginia

STAUNTON, Va., July 25, (UP)—James Eads How, of St Louis, known nationally as "the millionaire hobo," succumbed to puenmonia at the Kings Daughters hospital here this afternoon.

According to Dr. Don E. Wonack, who treated the world famous "Gentleman Tramp," attaches of the hospital were unaware of his identity until several hours after his death.

Dr. Wonack said How was apparently in a run down condition and an easy victim to pneumonia. He was about 60 years old. Recently he had been unusually active in seeking government aid to alleviate unemployment conditions and in this connection was a recent visitor to Washington.

THEY'RE HUNTING ORE

COLUMBUS, Kas., July 25—(UP)—A gas well may be a gas well to oil field workers of Kansas and Oklahoma, but here in the lead and zinc district its only a hole in the ground. In a quest for lead and zinc veins, drillers encountered a flow of gas which blew rocks and stones from the hole. Not interested, the owner said the fuel would be cased off, and drilling for ore would continue.

THIS IS WHY ICE GIVES THE BEST REFRIGERATION

Three things are essential to proper food preservation: (1) low temperature—less than 50°; (2) correct humidity, so that foods won't dry out, and (3) an unfailing method of carrying away food odors.

Only a good ice box well served with ice gives these three essentials.

It is kept odorless because the constant current of clean washed air carries the odors and impurities down the drainpipe, preventing strong foods from flavoring your milk, eggs, butter and other delicate foods.

Why pay an extravagant price for a mechanical chemical substitute for ice that fails in this vital particular?

Mechanical scoring protects you . . . look for the score mark and you will KNOW that each neat, evenly cut block of ICE in your refrigerator is full weight and honest value.

Shearer - Dressler Co-Starring Vehicle Opens at Sequoia Sunday

Marie Dressler and Norma Shearer Score Heavily In This New Romance-Laughter Special

Sunday is indeed a big day for Redwood City, the Rodeo in town, the Sequoia Theatre could not be outdone so the management secured one of the year's bigges tproductions, "LET US BE GAY," co-starring Norma Shearer and Marie Dressler. Movie fans will remember Norma Shearer in "Divorcee" and Marie Dressler in her latest laugh special "Caught Short" and put the two together and you can imagine what a wow is in store for them when they get a glimpse of "Let Us Be Gay." "Let Us Be Gay" cannot be visualized with adjectives, so let us say it is just a real good picture and good means good for the whole family, the kiddies included. The program is rounded out with two Vitaphone acts, a Paramount sound cartoon and Hearst talking news.

Oh, yes, folks, we just as well tell you about Greater Talkie Season. It is not merely a name but a big show of a really great pictures. It starts in August and the management of the Sequoia Theatre would be proud to tell the world of the attractaions they have in store for Redwood City and vicinity. This morning Clinton Eberly upon coming home from the meeting of the managers of the Fox-Arkush circuit at which Mr. A. M. Bowles, division manager of the Fox West CoastTheatres, and Mr. Ellis J. Arkush presided, gave a list of some of the great pictures that will mark the opening of Greater Talking Season in Redwood City, some of them were such as Greta Garbo in "Romance," "Journey's End," a really great picture, and "The Big House," the stirring drama that is now playing to capacity at Lowe's Warfield in San Francisco. This is the really great news and every individual in Redwood City, should get behind the big movement that the local theatre has under way.

Ice Drinks Nice In Hot Weather

According to Miss Doris Costello, home economist even the hottest summer days have their compensations. "One way of combating a blazing sun is to serve warm-weather drinks ice-cold," says Miss Costello. "Ice is the perfect friend of all beverages from plain water to rare nectar . . . bubbly drinks or drinks as placid as the old millpond."

"Sea-food or fruit cocktails, olives, celery or radishes, are all improved by chilling with cracked ice. A generous use of ice, in fact, is one of the charming customs of American entertaining.

"The hostess with a flair for entertaining picturesque finds attractive ice-buckets in glass or metal ideal for cracked ice service.

"A sharp ice-pick hanging conveniently near the refrigerator ready for instant use will save much time and trouble. A stout canvas bag and mallet for crushing ice are also most useful."

World War Vets Forms Ready For

Those Entitled to Pension May Secure Blanks For Filing

Blank forms to be used in making applications for the new disability allowance for World war veterans may be obtained from James P. Hearne, adjutant of Alan H. Nichols Post No. 69, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The bill as passed by congress provided a pension for all veterans of the world war who were honorably discharged; the amount of the pension being determined by the amount of present disability without regard to the connection of the disability with service in the war. The rates determined upon provide $12 a month for a 25 per cent disability; $18 for 50 per cent disability $24 for 75 per cent disability; and $40 for total disability.

Applications must be filed by all war veterans entitled to the above disability compensation. Officers of the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars call attention to the fact that theirs was the first veterans' organiation to see the need of a World War service pension for disabled veterans denied compensation under the World War Veterans Act. The idea was first adopted by the organiaztion at its national encampment in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1927, as part of its legislative program.

RAIL ROAD PROCEEDINGS REQUESTED RE-OPENED

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—The department of Public Works of Washington Washington State petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission today to reopen proceedings on the consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads. Similar action also has been requested by Montana and Minnesota Utilities Commission.

In its petition the Washington Public Works Department said it subscribed to the belief of the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission, which requested the reopening on the ground the Commission failed to take into account the effect of the consolidation on the employes of the two roads.

Montana indorsed the Minnesota brief in its petition. Montana also contended the large body of citizens of the state were denied the right to present their interests and rights in the issues involved in the consolidation.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

—by—
FRANK GETTY

(United Press Sports Editor)

Pennant races in both major leagues, are closer this year than they have been in a long, long time. Last season when the middle of July came around both the Cubs and the Athletics were well ahead, and had showed such marked superiority over their opponents, that there was scant doubt in anyone's mind who would be the contenders in the World Series.

At the time it is impossible to judge just who will end up on top in either league, with three teams running close to the lead in each case. In the American League the White Elephants of Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy would seem the logical choice, yet they only succeeded in overhauling Walter Johnston's amazingly rejuvenated Senators, after a long stern chase. The Yankees can not be counted out just yet. There is to much dynamite packed in their bats to allow them to drop very far, and with better pitching they would be ahead by a mile.

The National League scramble is far more heated, as usual, than the American. The Brooklyn Robins, discounted at the start of the season by everyone except Uncle Robbie, have shown a sustained drive which has kept them out in front most of the time. The only aggregation which they have had any real trouble with it the Chicago Cubs, who recently took three out of four from them in the Windy City. Joe McCarthy's men, greatly handicapped by the absence of Hornsby and the death of Hal Carlson, have put up a hard fight, and are only a few steps out of first place.

Close on the heels of the Cubs come the Giants, who with more consistent pitching would easily be the class of the senior circuit. Subject to both pitching and batting slumps, the Giants are still near the top, and if either of the first two teams should slip, it would find itself compelled to give way to John McGraw's outfit.

Perhaps the chief cause for the closeness of the pennant races this year lies in the greatly improved playing of the habitual second division clubs. In the American League both Boston and Chicago have proved stumbling blocks to the Yankees, while Detroit has given plenty of opposition to all three leaders. Cleveland, although lacking the push to win a pennant, is capable of causing plenty of trouble to the serious contenders.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds, although in seventh place, were still good enough to hand four successive defeats recently to the Cubs, while the improved Boston Braves have been a hoodoo at the Polo Grounds all year. Pittsburgh's Pirates, in sixth place, have first division power, if they ever get started, and are always dangerous for any team. The Cards are not far behind the Giants, and the Phillies, who can score a dozen runs and still lose a ball game, would be real contenders if given decent pitching.

LOS ANGELES DIRECTOR CONDUCTS AT SYMPHONY

The first concert beginning the last half of the series of summer open air concerts in the Woodland Theatre at Hillsborough will be conducted next Sunday afternoon by Dr. Arthur Rodzinski whose first appearance in Central California last Sunday drew a capacity audience which was amply rewarded by a magnificient concert played by the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra under the inspiration of the young conductor from Los Angeles.

Sunday's program will again be a mixture of the classics with a representative modern work, and interspersed with selections of somewhat lighter vein, thus meeting the demands of the cosmopolitan audiences which gather in this natural theatre for the feast of music offered.

Dr. Rodsinsky eloquently demonstrated last Sunday his complete familiarity and sympathy with the musical expression of several schools and periods and his program announced for next Sunday will give him ample opportunity again to reveal his ability as orchestral director, so that those who may have missed the privilidge of hearing him last week will be generously compensated in attending Sunday.

That perennial favorite as an opening selection for orchestral programs, the overture to the opera "Dr. Frischutz" by Weber will be the first number, and the brillian piece of orchestral writing, Rimski-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice" of which Tschaikowki wrote to the composer "it is a colossal masterpiece of instrumentation" will conclude the program.

Another work of the composer whose "Boloro" was given its Pacific Coast premiere three weeks ago in the Woodland Theatre, is to be heard Sunday. Series No. 2 of the Symphonic Fragments, arranged by the composer, from the Ballot, "Daphnis et Chloe" which Ravel wrote in 1911 for the Russian Ballet and produced in Paris in 1912 will have its first hearing at these concerts.
